This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. INTRODUCTION.

IT was on the 2nd September 1664 that Dugdale, at that time Norroy King at Arms, left Blythe hall, his house in Warwickshire, to hold his Visitation in Lancashire, of which event due notice had been given in the several hundreds of the county.[1] He was accompanied

[1] The following is a copy of the second letter issued by Dugdale to the High Bailiff of the Hundred of Salford:

To the Balive of the Hundred of Salford these. Whereas, by virtue of his Majesties Commission under ye great Seal of England to mee directed, you did receive a speciall Warrant from mee given at Manchester under the Seale of my office upon the 26 day of July last, for ye Authorizinge of y^m to warne divers persons residinge within the hundred of Salford in the County of Lancaster, to make their respective appearances before me at ye Sign of ye Kings head in Salford upon ye 9th day of ye month of September last, as well for the registeringe their descents, and justifying their titles of Esquires and Gentlemen as their right of such Coats of Armes and Crests which they usually shew forth and bear.

Lancashire would present to the two heralds, as they rode through many parts of the county, a desolate surface, pale sunshine, and a rude climate. Cold and rain predominated, doubtless, then, as in after times; and civilization seemed to be, in the seventeenth century, almost outside its boundaries. The two heralds found few monastic build-

Nor did Norroy forget that the county which he visited "had been dignified by wisdom, bravery and virtue;" and if the great Christian moralist of the next century repudiated the frigid philosophy which might have conducted him, "indifferent and unmoved," over such a county, we may conclude that a similar sentiment influenced Dugdale as he rode through the palatinate which had witnessed the greatness of Henry earl of Lancaster, the piety of Thomas lord de la Warr, and the martyrdom of James earl of Derby.

Having arrived at Bridgenorth he found the assize for Shropshire was being held, and he remained there five days, not reaching Manchester until the 8th of September. Here he was occupied three days, and on the 12th he opened his court at Blackburn, and in two days more he had discharged all his official duties in that populous hundred. From Blackburn he rode by Chipping, a wild and uncultivated district skirted by the forest of Bleasdale, to the small village of Garstang, where he remained the night; and after such a ride over highways and byways the wayworn traveller, having had enough of the keen air of Amounderness, would be glad of the welcomes and greetings, as well as of the "well-filled trencher and well-frothed can," of the old village hostelry. On the following morning he rode eleven miles to Lancaster, passing through the little village of Cockerham, and leaving Cockersand abbey and Ashton hall on the left. He would hardly fail to denounce the wild but scarcely romantic district, called by Mr. Gilpin in the next century, "bleak, unpleasant and rugged,"[2] and as he passed along would smile at the mean-looking farm homesteads, the poor crops of oats and the turf moors where the peasantry found their winter's food and fuel. And yet there was scenery not entirely to be despised or overlooked, and his eye might have fallen on > "The purling stream, the river's flow,

> The woody valley warm and low,
> The windy summit wild and high > Roughly rushing to the sky."

Having spent two days at the county town, then, as now, distinguished by its massive castle, its noble river, and its fine picturesque scenery, on the 16th he rode over twenty-two miles of bad roads, although the great highway from Westmoreland and Scotland, and in the evening rested at Preston. After a somewhat prolonged stay in this interesting old town, we find him on the 21st at sir Thomas Hesketh's at Rufford, where the fine illuminated vellum pedigree of this ancient family, which he carefully prepared, still remains. In his Diary he calls Rufford, in mistake, "Mr. Molyneux's house."[3] On the next day he arrived, not at Liverpool, which was then too obscure a place for a herald to visit, but at Ormskirk, where he seems to have been surrounded by aristocratic families. He clearly was on the best of terms and greatly sympathised with the old royalist families, and has recorded almost every instance of individual loyalty and public self-sacrifice in the county during the Civil War.[4] On the 24th he reached Knowsley, which he had certainly visited more than once or twice some years before, and he found its noble owners again occupying their high place in the royal, social and political circle. Having staid there a couple of days he proceeded thence to sir Peter Leycester's at Tabley in Cheshire, where the meeting of the two learned and accomplished antiquaries must have been mutually gratifying. His stay here was not protracted, and on the 29th he arrived at his own house, having been absent nearly a month;[5] but the business of the Visitation, owing to the indifference of the county families, was not completed. And yet at this time there was probably a larger amount of the true antiquarian spirit in Lancashire than in any other county in England. The great northern antiquaries were all intimately pursuing one common object; and although Dodsworth had passed away and Rushworth was in London, yet Christopher Towneley of Moor hiles near Colne, Dr. Kuerden of Preston, Dr. Theophilus Howorth of Howorth near Rochdale, but practising as a physician in Manchester, and Dr. Charles Leigh (at that time a young man), were his personal friends and now welcomed him; whilst John Hopkinson and Dr. Nathaniel Johnston were in the adjoining county of York, and both of them his allies, Henry Johnston of Pontefract, the doctor's brother and afterwards a Benedictine monk, being Dugdale's clerk.

In the spring of the following year Norroy again visited Lancashire with a determination to complete the Heraldic Visitation, not very auspiciously commenced in the preceding autumn. On the 9th March 1664-5 he left his house and, remaining the night at Stone in Staffordshire, on the next day arrived in Manchester, and, having opened his court, continued to receive evidence and to record pedigrees until the evening of the following day, the whole of the gentilitial families of South Lancashire only requiring two days for the purpose. The 13th was occupied in a horseback journey of thirty miles through Bolton and Chorley, a rich, flat and woody district, to Preston, as "he had before arranged to sit at Preston" on the 14th. The next day seems to have been spent in travelling to Lancaster, the features of which appeared to Gray in the next century "very conspicuous and fine,"[6] and on the 16th Norroy "sat there." The business only employed him a couple of days, and he could not complete his Lancashire Visitation. He therefore determined to proceed to Westmoreland, and having ridden twenty-two miles through a romantic and wild region, affording views of the bay of Cartmel and the desolate mountains of Furness, he reached Kendal, where he opened his court "at the Fox and Goose," and remained more than a fortnight in the two counties of Westmoreland and Cumberland. On the 5th of April he returned to Lancaster, Preston and Ormskirk, where probably he found that defective evidence had in the interval of the two visits been amended or rectified. On the 8th he sat at Blackburn, and "Mr. Thomas Whalley, an attorney, entered the descent for Mr. Walmisley of Dunkenhalgh;"[7] thence he proceeded to Sefton, and on the next day joined his old friend, sir Peter Leycester, once more at Tabley. Shortly afterwards he returned home, having discharged his light official duties and ended, without undue precipitance, his Visitation of Lancashire.

Dugdale claimed the merit, whilst Norroy, of making the pedigrees which he recorded at his visitations, more full and exact than any of his predecessors,[8] and especially in collaterals; although it is still to be regretted that so much was left unrecorded which is now almost beyond the reach of genealogists, and that so many inaccuracies have the sanction of his respectable name.

There must always be a beginning of new gentry as well as an ending of ancient, and in this Visitation we miss some of the old families who had before appeared at the summons of the heralds, and are introduced to those who had not long been territorial owners in the county. Several of the old families had passed away, but we may hope that they had not all been like the "Degenerous Gentleman" described by Dugdale's contemporary, honest Fuller, who "within two generations had his name quite forgotten that any such ever was in the place, except some Herald in his Visitation passed by and chanced to spell his broken arms in a church window; shewing how weak a thing Gentry is, than which, if it wants virtue, brittle glass is the more lasting monument."[9] Professional men and the better educated classes, some of them only a short step above the rank of yeomen, seem to have been received by Norroy without difficulty, and their claims were conceded or facilitated with tact and discretion. If they did not always secure armorial bearings they were permitted to register their brief descents, and that perhaps without any of the vulgar vanity which is sometimes found to accompany the proceeding. And yet it is difficult to see what they gained by registration unless arms had been allowed. To several cadets of good houses the very helmets, crests, and armorial ensigns were almost invested with the emotions and passions of living beings, and were guarded with jealous care, as they brought back to the memory ancient times and memorable events. Many families of a class, gently born and well connected, had been reduced in position by the late Civil War. Some keenly felt their connection with the county materially altered, and were ashamed to come forward to claim the distinction and honour peculiar to gentlemen. After long suffering and privation others had become indifferent on the subject. Norroy treated some of the county families, especially those who had been involved in the struggle against the king, with great superciliousness, and harshly rejected their claims. Letters written to him by Lancashire gentlemen, now remaining in the College of Arms, prove that he exercised a sway equal, or almost superior, to the authority of the secular sovereign,—and, it may be, a little more arbitrary: nor was his power in his provincial kingdom merely nominal, as the Asshetons of Middleton,[10] Marklands of Wigan[11] and others, found to their prejudice. The battle-field had not brought heraldic honours into much prominence or favour. Churches had been despoiled of their arms and heraldry, and as Fuller quaintly observed, were "crest fallen;" glass windows, with rare achievements emblazoned in them, had been ruthlessly broken; and the recollection was vivid enough to recal the painful scenes of destruction which had been witnessed, and in some instances perpetrated, by those very men who had now been summoned to appear before the King of Arms.

There would doubtless be some curious incidents and scenes witnessed at this Visitation. Dugdale was a consistent royalist and lived in strict communion with the English Church. He had in Lancashire to encounter a bold and independent race whose strong religious spirit had been led astray, and he seems to have forgotten that the rigid narrowness of Puritanism had been at least, as it has been tersely observed, "popular, fruitful and powerful;" and if he met with provocations to try his forbearance, and rebuffs to exercise his self-control, his own antecedents had probably, in some degree, occasioned them. The Puritans were indisposed to recognize either him or his office, so that few pedigrees of these families were entered by him, and many gentlemen who did not sympathise with that politico-religious party, altogether refused to undergo the required ordeal, as the tribunal was considered by them expensive, arbitrary and incompetent, Norroy himself being both judge and jury.

Although it would be unjust to say, with an acute and not ill-informed but perhaps prejudiced writer, that Dugdale's pedigrees are characterised by "inaccuracy, negligence, ignorance and stupidity," and that "as often as he has opportunity he falls into mistakes;"[12] it must, nevertheless, be admitted that they are not free from very gross and occasionally almost incredible errors, some of which, occurring in this Visitation, may hereafter be pointed out. His labour was onerous, and perfection was impossible, so that works like Dugdale's must perhaps always be classed with those of which Bacon says that they cannot be done "within the hour-glass of one man's life."[13] It ought not, at the same time, to be forgotten that the circumstances under which the evidences were adduced and the proofs taken were not favourable for verifying references or for ascertaining minute and exact details. The habits of men and the tone of society have greatly altered since the seventeenth century; but a public house, in which Norroy always seems to have held his courts, was not, perhaps, in that dissolute age, the best place for country squires to meet for the submitting of such genealogical material as the case required; and the surroundings must have been equally uncongenial to the heralds, and little adapted for the careful examination and chronicling of important facts.

Nor ought it also to be forgotten that the heralds did not meet always with substantial emolument and generosity from the leading county families, who hardly came forward voluntarily to make their statements, and who were painfully aware that if they neglected the summons or failed to satisfy the requirements of the heralds, they were liable to be publicly degraded. And as to the pretentious or presumptuous claimant to armorial bearings and to the honours they involved, he was loudly and openly proclaimed by name, and with due formality, emphasis and acerbity, at the market cross, to be "no gentleman," and as such the county was expected to regard and treat him.

These were some of the indignities to which country gentlemen and aspirants for heraldic distinctions were subjected; and, much as it is to be regretted, we may not wonder that Dugdale's was the last Heraldic Visitation which was held for the county palatine of Lancaster.

The Twenty-eighth Report

OF THE

COUNCIL OF THE CHETHAM SOCIETY,

Read at the Annual Meeting, held, by permission of the Feoffees, in the Audit Room of Chetham's Hospital, on the 1st March, 1871.

VOLS. 81 and 82 in the Chetham series, and the first and second for the year 1870–1, consist of the Heraldic Visitations of the County Palatine of Lancaster made in the years 1567 and 1613 respectively, the former by William Flower, Esq., Norroy King of Arms, and the latter by Richard St. George, Esq., holding the same office. These succeed the Visitation of 1532, which is now in progress of publication for the Society, under the editorial care of Mr. LANGTON. They are much fuller and more extensive in their records of pedigrees than the one which commences the series, and after much consideration it was deemed most advisable to follow the course adopted by the Surtees Society with respect to Sir William Dugdale's Visitation of Yorkshire in 1665, to print them as accurately as possible from the originals without addition or commentary, and to give a verbal description of the Arms without incurring the expense, which would have been considerable, of engraving them. At the request of the Council the Vice-President, CANON RAINES, undertook the duty of editing these Visitations, a duty which he has performed with his usual care and diligence. The members need only be referred to the very interesting and masterly introductions, prefixed to the volumes by the learned editor, for the requisite information as to the circumstances under which the Visitations were held, the manuscripts from which they have been printed, the biographical particulars connected with the officers making them, and the general character, usefulness and value of the Visitations themselves as Heraldic records furnishing evidence, not always conclusive but seldom to be entirely disregarded, in tracing the genealogical deduction of families in this kingdom. These two volumes will, the Council trust, be accepted as a substantial instalment towards the performance of what was promised in the first list of projected works of the Society, The Heraldic Visitations of Lancashire and Cheshire, but the fulfilment of which, from various causes which it is scarcely necessary to mention, has been so long retarded.

Vol. 83 in the series and the third for the year 1870–1, will comprise, first, Some Account of General Robert Venables of Antrobus and Wincham in Cheshire, with the Autobiographical Memoranda of his widow, Elizabeth Venables, from the original MSS. in the possession of LEE P. TOWNSHEND, Esq., with an engraving from the portrait of the General at Wincham hall; and secondly, A Forme of Confession, grounded upon the Ancient Catholique and Apostolique faith, made and composed by the honorable Ladie, the Lady Bridget Egerton, A.D. 1636, from the original MS. in the possession of Sir PHILIP DE MALPAS GREY EGERTON, Bart., M.P. The two gentlemen who have obligingly communicated these interesting documents from their family archives, have added what was necessary by way of prefatory illustration.

The Venables papers afford some new particulars in reference to the history of the unfortunate expedition to Hispaniola during the Protectorate of Oliver Cromwell, which render its final result the less surprising. The name of Venables must however be always associated with the gaining of Jamaica, a much more important conquest than the one proposed, and for failing in which this ill-used General, who had a stern taskmaster to deal with, was disgraced and imprisoned. On the Restoration he appears to have devoted himself to the pursuits of a country gentleman, and to have rested his fame on his proficiency in angling. To one whose early career had been past amidst "war and battle's sound" it is pleasant to read such a tribute as that which is paid by Isaac Walton, prefixed to the General's Experienced Angler, (Lond. 1662, 12mo.) But perhaps the most valuable of the Venables documents is the autobiography of Mrs. Venables. It will be read with great interest and pleasure by all who love the frank exhibition of character which writings of this class present, and to whom Mrs. Lucy Hutchinson is an attractive type of female authorship. The document communicated by Sir Philip de Malpas Grey Egerton, and which forms the second portion of the volume, is singularly curious. It is an elaborate exposition of the creed of a lady of noble descent, the last representative of an illustrious line, the wife of Sir Rowland Egerton of Oulton, Bart., and the daughter of Arthur Lord Grey of Wilton, K.G., Lord Deputy of Ireland in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, whose private secretary was Edmund Spenser the poet. This composition deserves and will reward an attentive examination. It has been objected as a decisive argument against Lady Packington's claim to the authorship of The Whole Duty of Man, that its style is of too masculine a character; but with Lady Bridget Egerton's creed and other contemporary writings by females before us, that objection appears by no means an unsurmountable one. It is to be regretted that Lady Bridget's creed cannot be accompanied by her portrait.

The two first volumes for the year are in the hands of the Members. The third will be speedily issued.

The Council have deep regret in recording the loss which the Society has sustained during the last year in the death of its greatest benefactor, the late lamented and truly benevolent Miss Eleanora Atherton. To her it is indebted for the four delightful volumes of Dr. Byrom's Remains, which have now taken a deservedly high position in English autobiographical literature. The interest attaching to the Doctor's personal character, which is unreservedly displayed throughout; the pleasing record of his studies and book-collecting; the notices of Manchester; the lively pictures of contemporary habits and manners; the glimpses of eminent men which they afford us; the panoramic view of the great metropolis which it presents; and the correspondence with Thyer, Law, Warburton and others which is interspersed, — contribute to give a charm to these volumes of no ordinary kind. As therefore this work, financially of such service to the Society, and adding so much to the literary value of its series, was entirely the munificent present of Miss Atherton, her name must ever be gratefully remembered in connection with the continued success and prosperity which has hitherto attended, and appears to be likely in future to attend, its course and progress.
